Mississippi College Board Agrees To Enroll Meredith

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Under threat of court contempt, the Mississippi State College Board Monday agreed to enroll James H. Meredith, a Negro, in all-white University of Mississippi.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals set a 4 p.m. Tuesday deadline for his registration.

Meredith would be the first Negro admitted as a student at Ole Miss in 114 years.

The board offered to register Meredith at Jackson, the Mississippi State capital which is 150 miles closer to New Orleans than is the University of Mississippi campus at Oxford.

Meredith's attorneys agreed. But these agreements did not take into account Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi, who has sworn to go to jail rather than enroll a Negro in a Mississippi school.

Governor Acts
During the day, when the college board was being forced into action, Barnett did these things:

1. Got a state court order forbidding university officials from enrolling Meredith and Meredith from trying to enroll.
2. Issued an executive order which orders state police to arrest anyone who tries to arrest or fine a state official.
Just before the long hearing in New Orleans ended, the Mississippi Highway Patrol announced a 24-hour standby alert. It didn't say why.

Meredith told newsmen after the hearing: "I've been admitted a lot of times before."

A Justice Department spokesman in Washington said the department had been advised of the board's agreement and he added, "We're making arrangements for Meredith to register."

Asked whether this meant Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy was telephoning Barnett as he had done several times in recent days in an attempt to settle the controversy, the department spokesman said, "I can't say at this time."

Violated Order
Judge Elbert P. Tuttle, Atlanta, Ga., presiding, said the court found the board members did fully and intentionally violate the desegregation order.

"However," he added, "no order is being entered immediately regarding their guilt."

Judge Tuttle then asked if the members were "ready and willing to take such action as to comply with the injunction."

Board Chairman Tom Tubbs, speaking for the 12 members of the 13-member board who were present, told the court the board will comply with any order of the court.

Robert B. Ellis, registrar, one of three top Ole Miss officials also summoned to the hearing, was instructed to register Meredith no later than 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Must Revoke Orders
Tuttle told the board that its show of compliance must include revocation of two resolutions passed by the board in the face of the Meredith crisis—one stripping university administrative officials of any authority to register Meredith and another giving Barnett authority to act as registrar.

When Meredith's lawyer asked for the court to insure that Meredith got a dorm room Judge Tuttle said:

"He (Meredith) is to be admitted as a student and treated as every other student. If they (the university) fail to do that, then I think that will be another matter for another citation."

Approved Legislation Will Hike Mail Rates, Boost Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to raise letter and postcard postage a penny, boost other mail rates and provide a $1-billion pay increase for 1.6 million federal workers was approved Monday for Senate action.

The Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee finally wrapped up the dual measure exactly eight months after the House passed a bill solely confined to postal rate increases.

In addition to amending the bill to add the pay raises, the committee in a unanimous vote moved to soften the impact of the rate increases on business firms. And it loosened a House-voted ban on Communist propaganda in the mails.

But Committee Chairman Olin D. Johnston, D-S.C., told newsmen he is confident both the Senate and House will pass the combined measure. The Senate is expected to take it up, later this week.

Adjournment Due
This means the House would get the bill back at a time when pressure for congressional adjournment is picking up steam. Johnston predicted that the House will accept the Senate version without even asking for a conference committee.

The bill is on President Kennedy's list of priority legislation. It does not give him exactly what he asked either on rates or pay, but goes a long way toward fulfilling his desires.

Last Jan. 24, the House passed a rate bill designed to bring in $690 million a year more in postal revenues and end the perennial post office deficit. The Senate committee pared the expected income from the rate increase to $603 million and voted $368 million in pay increases for the 590,000 postal employees.

Affects One Million
Approximately one million other classified Civil Service workers would get an over-all $683-million pay increase. Congressional employees would get an average 7 per cent increase. Some 600,000 retired Civil Service employees would get a 5 per cent increase in pension pay—at a cost of about $30 million a year.

The pay boosts would take effect in two steps—one at the first payday after the President signed the bill and the other in January 1964.

Effective Jan. 7, 1963, the first-class letter rate would go from 4 to 5 cents, postcards from 3 to 4 cents, airmail from 7 to 8 cents and airmail cards from 5 to 6 cents. Both Senate and House versions would bring an estimated $437.8 million a year from these increases.

Second Class Rates
Newspaper and magazine second-class rates would go up in 1963, 1964 and 1965. There would be a boost of 4 per cent each of the three years on the per pound editorial content charge and 10 per cent increase each year on the advertising content charge.

This was substituted for a 1-cent-per-piece handling charge voted by the House and opposed vigorously by publishers in the committee's hearings.

The Senate bill would add $27.6 million in three years under the second-class changes, the House bill $34.7 million.

The committee changed drastically increases voted by the House in third-class rates—junk mail some members of Congress call it. For example the House bill would raise the minimum per-piece charge for circulars from 2½ cents to 3½ cents. The Senate version would jack it to 2½ cents by the third year.

The Senate bill would bring in an extra $97.2 million annually for third-class mail at the end of the third year, the House bill $161.9 million.

Find U.S. Gaining Ground:

Nation's Leaders Evaluate International Situation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Monday night that in these dangerous times "on balance, the free world is gaining strength relative to the Communist world."

"A symbol of Communist failure," Rusk said is the Berlin wall because "successful systems do not have to build walls against their own people."

Rusk was one of six top administration officials who analyzed the international situation during a taped broadcast on the national education network.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told of steps taken to strengthen the U.S. military forces and said Europe's movement toward integration "requires us to reassess our military relationships."

But McNamara cautioned, "We can't hope to deter aggression without taking some of the risks that are associated with the failure of deterrence, a risk that we shall have to fight the war that we are trying to avoid. There is the ever-present problem, therefore, of the balancing of risks."

Undersecretary of State George Ball spoke of the prospects of a political union in Europe.

For the first time in our history, we have the possibility of an entity of equal size, commanding almost equal resources, that can serve as a partner with us in our common endeavors and in our common tasks," Ball said.

"Now that Europe is going strong and now that Europe is becoming united, we can look to Europe as an equal partner to share our burdens with us."

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson spoke of United Nations efforts to preserve peace and said: "We can learn a great deal from this story of the Congo. I hope we Americans will remember it. It was not we but our Soviet adversaries who beat their desks in anger because of the U.N.'s action in the Congo."

Hamilton Fowler, U.S. aid administrator, restated what he called the "sound principle" of this country's aid program. He said the United States is not extending such aid "unless the people who are interested in receiving it are willing to work out a partnership arrangement with us, because ultimately the only forces that can save a society from communism are the forces within that society."

Walt W. Rostow, State Department counselor, said that while the West's first task is to frustrate all forms of Communist aggression it is "not in our interest, nor is it our belief, that the cold war need go on forever."

The West, he said, while building and defending itself, should convince the Communists that "their notion of world domination is an impossible notion."

The West, Rostow said, also should attempt to limit the issues of disagreement "and to make agreements which, while protecting our interests, diminish the dangers of confrontation in such places as Laos and Berlin which will lead to war."

PICKED UP PLANE SURVIVORS — This is the Swiss vessel Celerina which picked up some survivors of a Flying Tiger airliner that ditched in the Atlantic 500 miles west of Ireland. There were at least 76 persons, including servicemen and their families, aboard the stricken plane.

Rescue Workers Still Comb Area

LONDON (AP)—A little Swiss freighter snatched 49 American plane crash survivors from the storm-lashed Atlantic Monday. Hope for the 14 still missing faded rapidly after dark. The 13 others aboard the downed plane were reported dead.

A spokesman at the U.S. Air Force Base at Prestwick, Scotland, said 11 bodies had been taken from the churning seas and that two others had been sighted but not recovered. Two children were among those not accounted for.

In all, there were 76 persons aboard the chartered Flying Tiger Line airliner that ditched in the North Atlantic Sunday night with its load of American servicemen and their families on a flight to Germany.

Four Rafts Found
A Royal Air Force officer at Plymouth said it was almost certain that four of the six life rafts carried by the downed Super Constellation had been accounted for and that the two others probably were destroyed.

The Swiss freighter Celerina picked up 49 survivors—five of them women. Some of the survivors were seriously injured and all suffered from shock in the crash landing 500 miles west of Ireland.

Four injured survivors and the recovered bodies were later transferred by helicopter from the 9,041-ton Celerina to the Canadian aircraft carrier Bonaventure, which raced to the scene with its destroyer escort. The Bonaventure was due to arrive at Shannon, Ireland, Wednesday.

The Celerina probably will take other survivors to her destination Port of Antwerp, Belgium.

Hope Flickers
Hopes for the missing were raised earlier in the day when a British freighter radioed that it had sighted a raft with survivors clinging to the side, but the hopes fell off sharply as time wore on and there was no confirmation of the report.

However, an international rescue fleet pressed on with the search after dark despite a near gale whipping up 10 foot waves in the area.

The Canadian navy reported helicopters from the aircraft carrier Bonaventure would continue searching through the night together with half a dozen merchant ships and Canadian destroyers. Eight British Shackleton aircraft joined them.

The U.S. Air Force announced it would discontinue search operations during the night but resume 45 minutes before dawn.

During the day the U.S. Air Force put amphibian planes over the disaster area. The planes carried paramedics—doctors trained as parachutists—ready to jump into the sea if their help was needed.

When the first plane returned to its Scottish base at Prestwick its commander, Lt. Bill Trippie, 28, Baltimore, Md., told newsmen:

"That sea was pretty mean looking. It was rough and the ships were having a ticklish job getting survivors aboard."

Among ships which answered distress call was the Cunard luxury liner Mauretania, which changed its course to join the search.

More than a dozen ships, together with American, Canadian and British planes, took part in the search.

The Super Constellation took off from McGuire Air Force Base, N.J., Sunday morning with 68 American servicemen and their dependents and a crew of eight aboard.

After a refueling stop at Ganders, N.D., the pilot radioed distress messages as three of the airliner's four engines conked out one after another and forced him to crash at night in raging seas.

Eight hours later, the Celerina picked up the first survivors from a raft.

In the rescue operation, at least one member of the Celerina crew was reported seriously hurt.

The Bonaventure later put a doctor aboard the Swiss ship by helicopter and he went to work immediately to give emergency treatment to the injured. With him was a doctor who was aboard the crashed plane.

Find Navy Plane With Ten Dead

KODIAK, Alaska (AP) — A search party reached a Navy patrol plane from San Diego Monday that crashed and burned at the 1,900-foot level on Montague Island Saturday, killing all 10 men aboard.

The plane was spotted by a search craft on the island in Prince William Sound about 220 miles northeast of here.

A party of Marines and Coast guardsmen climbed to the crash scene and radioed there were no survivors.

The twin-engine P5M, was attached to Patrol Squadron 42 of San Diego. It crashed while on a routine patrol over the Gulf of Alaska.

Aboard were Lt. Cmdr. Henry B. Nix, the pilot, Coronado, Calif.; Lt. Allen J. Finstein, Glen Cove, N.Y.; Lt. (jg) Lawrence S. Hembree, Imperial Beach, Calif.; Aviation Electronics Technician 3C, Robert J. Joss, Painesville, Ohio; Aviation Structural Mechanic Airman Ralph D. King, San Diego; Aviation Electronics Technician 3C, James L. Kirby, Trempealeau, Wis.; Aviation Mechanics Mate 2C, Ralph C. Poort, San Diego, and R. G. Bradberry.

Argentina's Navy Backs Guido Rule

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Jose Maria Guido, asserting his new-won authority after a military upheaval that jolted the nation, demanded and received Monday a pledge of support from navy forces whose allegiance had been shrouded in doubt.

At the same time Guido took a first step toward restoring civilian rule to a country torn by months of army division which erupted into bloody conflict over the weekend. He named as army secretary retired Gen. Benjamin Rattenbach, 66, outspoken but widely respected artillery officer who champions the line that the military should stay out of politics.

The navy's decision to go along with Guido put to rest widespread unofficial reports of navy dissension which hinted that the Argentine situation remained unsettled. The fleet is considered the muscled member of the armed forces. It had no part at all in Saturday's brief but violent flareup in which the infantry, tank corps and air force bore the brunt of the action.

Fourteen persons were killed—11 of them civilian bystanders—in the five-day civil war and 55 wounded. Most of the wounded too were civilians.

Guido named Rear Adm. A. Kolungia navy secretary, replacing Rear Adm. Gaston G. Clement.

Clement accepted full responsibility for a fleet communique of last Friday which placed the blame for erupting violence on Guido's shoulders.

Clement also had opposed an attempt by Guido to place Rattenbach in the Cabinet earlier in the crisis.

But he knuckled under Monday, saying "The armada continues subordinate to the national executive power."

Guido has promised elections for October, 1963.

REPORTED CRASHED PLANE — Lt. Joseph K. Lewis of Tuscaloosa, Ala., points to map in Prestwick, Scotland, indicating spot where he located survivors of ditched Flying Tiger Airliner plane 500 miles west of Ireland. Flying a C118 on a troop ferrying mission, as was the crashed plane, he circled the area until his fuel supply was almost gone and the first rescue ship arrived.

Ten From Keystone State On Ditched Plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten Pennsylvanians were aboard the Super Constellation airliner that ditched Sunday in the storm-tossed North Atlantic after three engines failed.

Of the 10, one was a crew member, Navigator Samuel T. Nicholson, 32, of Dallas, Luzerne County. He joined the Flying Tiger Line five years ago after a hitch in the Army.

The passengers were Army and Air Force personnel — three of them wives of soldiers—bound for Frankfurt, Germany, from the McGuire Air Force Base at Fort Dix, N.J.

The Keystone Staters listed aboard by the Army were: Pvt. John E. Brown, Pittsburgh; Capt. Robert C. Eldred, Jenkinstown, and his wife, Edna.

Spec. 4 John Groves, Pittsburgh, and his wife, Helga.

Pvt. Harold Lesane, Philadelphia.

Pvt. Dominic Teominello, Mohnton, Berks County.

Capt. John P. Devlin, Philadelphia, and wife, Naomi.

There was no report whether the Pennsylvanians were rescued. Plucked from rafts in early rescue efforts were 49 persons. Two bodies also were found.

The Eldreds, actually, maintain a home at East Dennis, Mass., where two teenage children are living. The suburban Philadelphia address of Jenkinstown is the home of Mrs. Eldred's brother, Navy Capt. Martin Miller who was listed as next of kin.

Private Le Sane, 18, is one of 11 children of Mrs. Mabel Le Sane. He quit high school in March to join the Army paratroopers.

Major Devlin, 40, and his wife, 33, make their home in West Point, N.Y., where he is a member of the Army Medical Corps. His wife's father lives in North Philadelphia. Devlin is a native of Pittsburgh. The couple met at Pennsylvania State University where each graduated in 1949 with a doctorate in psychology.

Pvt. Brown, 20, was en route to an assignment in Germany. He had just completed "jump school" following his enlistment last March.

Sgt. Groves, 22, and his wife, were returning to Stuttgart, Germany, where they have been living for the last four years.

They visited in Pittsburgh two weeks ago with Groves' brother, Robert. They also had visited his mother in Cincinnati. Sgt. Groves enlisted in the Army in Cincinnati five years ago.

House Passes Reserve Call Power Bill Without Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed and sent to President Kennedy Monday a bill authorizing him to mobilize 150,000 reservists if the situation in Cuba or elsewhere grows more threatening.

The measure was passed by a

341-13 roll call vote after several Republicans questioned its value.

On the final tally 131 Republicans joined 211 Democrats in support of the measure. Against it were 2 Democrats and 11 Republicans.

Democratic leaders urged the House to give Kennedy what he asked for to strengthen his hand in dealing with limited emergencies while Congress is in adjournment.

Reject Amendments
The House responded by shutting down a series of amendments and passed the bill in exactly the same form as it cleared the Senate a week ago last Thursday.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., protested that "this legislation will have as much impact on Mr. Khrushchev as a single leaf falling in a mighty forest." He proposed enlarging its callup authority from 150,000 to one million men but his amendment was defeated.

The House also rejected an amendment proposed by Ford under which the reserves called up would be limited to those in the Air Force and Navy.

Rep. Bruce Alger, R-Tex., who described the bill as "a political gesture," sought unsuccessfully to knock out the section giving the President authority to call up reserves. This would have left only a second provision empowering the chief executive to extend present enlistments and duty tours for men now in service.

Avoid Conference
By passing the bill in the same form that it cleared the Senate, the House avoided the necessity of a Senate-House conference to iron out differences.

The bill, which Kennedy said he wants to help deal with less than all-out emergencies while Congress is in adjournment, passed the Senate unanimously on Sept. 13.

It had been scheduled to expedited action in the House last Monday, but several members objected and a final vote was put off until Monday.

During the week-long cooling off period, the Senate passed a resolution declaring the United States will not tolerate any Soviet military buildup in Cuba which threatens American security. The House is due to act on this resolution Wednesday.

Rep. Bruce Alger, R-Tex., who

Area Worker Writes Of Surgery

(Editor's Note — With the scheduled appearance of the Red Cross Bloodmobile at the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church today, the following story by Nick Shopay shows the value of a blood campaign. Shopay, a carpenter in the Maintenance Division at Tobyhanna Army Depot, thanks donors for making his delicate heart operation possible).

WHILE shoveling snow from my driveway one day last winter, I suddenly blacked out. This was the beginning of my ordeal towards open-heart surgery.

Several weeks later, after many tests and X-rays at the VA Hospital in Wilkes-Barre, I was told that I had a valve blockage in the heart and, if I wanted to survive and lead a normal life, an operation would be necessary.

Undecided what to do, I went to see another heart specialist, but his findings were the same. After more talks with the specialist and my family doctor, I finally made up my mind to let them make arrangements for surgery.

During these discussions, they told me that the most difficult task would be to obtain a sufficient amount of blood — 15 to 20 pints. Not knowing where to start, I contacted the Depot Information Office and explained my problem. The Office placed a phone call to the Monroe County Chapter of the Red Cross, and the chapter agreed to furnish all the blood I would need for my surgery. They were doing this for me, although I could not be a donor, because of the wonderful record the Depot had in regional blood drives.

I continued on my job until I received word to report to the Hahnemann Medical College Hospital in Philadelphia. Soon after I arrived, the tests began — blood tests, X-rays, cardiographs, and finally the big one — cardiac catheterization.

Can't Find Vein
In this test, the doctors tried to place a tube into my heart through a certain vein in my leg. For some reason, they could not make contact with this vein and, after more than four hours, they decided to give up for awhile. I was then treated as the "man without a vein."

A few days later the catheterization was tried again, this time through the arm. Three hours, five doctors and five tubes later, they succeeded. Just then, the machine they were using broke down and I thought I would have to go through all this again, but they fixed it quickly.

After all these tests, I was finally scheduled for surgery. While waiting, I developed an infection in my leg from one of the earlier tests, and the operation had to be postponed. The doctors explained that this delicate heart surgery could not be performed if the patient had the slightest infection in his body. I was sent home to wait for my leg to heal.

After feeling a little stronger, I made a trip to the Depot to thank the Information Office for all they had done so far in my behalf. While at the hospital I saw many heart patients turned away because they had made no blood available for their operations. These people then had to call on relatives and friends, and advertise for donors, with still no guarantee they could get enough of the vital fluid.

One Of Few
In fact, I was one of the very few who had a certificate stating that blood was waiting for me in Philadelphia. One man who did not have blood available was sent home, suffered a heart attack and could not have his operation performed until he had recovered enough strength for it, and this was months later.

I received very short notice to return to the hospital. They called me Tuesday to report on Sunday, with the operation scheduled for the following Wednesday. Up to the night before my surgery, I still did not have any private nurses arranged for and could not get them, but I was assured by the head nurse, that I would get as good care without them. Believe me, I certainly did. I had wonderful care.

The whole day before was a very busy one indeed with final tests and preparations. I was surprised and relieved when all the doctors who were going to be in on the operation visited me and explained what was going to happen. After all these explanations, I felt more confident about the outcome.

Early the next morning, at 6 a.m., I was awakened and made ready for what they called the "cut down," which was preparation for intravenous feeding and transfer of blood. I was fed my breakfast intravenously and, at 7:30, the surgeons made a final check.

I was taken into the operating room at 8 sharp and when I saw all the doctors and nurses there, I thought they were going to operate on 10 people, instead of just me. They had given me sodium pentothal when I entered the room and three minutes later I was in dreamland. The next thing I remember, five hours later, someone was shaking me to wake up and telling me it was all over. It seemed as if the operation had lasted only five minutes, just like doing off.

I required 16 pints of blood, 15 to prime the heart-lung machine, which allows the surgeons to operate in a blood-free area, and one pint following surgery. It took a few days before I could get my actual bearings and know what day it was, although I do remember visitors, but it was all like a dream.

Returns to Job
After that, it was to bear with a little more pain, tests all over again, then removal of the stitches. Two weeks and one day from the day I was admitted, I returned home. Six weeks later, I was back at work.

It is true I am not as healthy as someone who never had this condition, but I feel 100 percent better than before surgery, even though I must be careful what I do, how I do it, and get my proper rest.

It is wonderful not to worry about blacking out at times, to be able to take a deep breath, and get a good night's sleep, which for awhile I thought would never be possible.

I do most sincerely wish to thank the soldiers and employees of the Depot who have donated in blood drives here. They made my operation possible, and without it, who knows, I may not be writing this article today.

Kale with a plaque in appreciation for his contribution to community projects such as the "New Eyes for the Needy" drive, Little League, Boy Scout activities, safety measures, etc., and as a host, through depot tours available to all area groups.

Col. Kale has earned the deepest respect of all our members and will long be remembered for his contributions, officials noted.

Ken Hall, Lions District Governor, will make a short talk as will Deputy District Governor Dr. Paul Maxwell. Gov. Hall will also present Col. Kale with a Certificate of Honor in appreciation for his accomplishments from Lions International.

The affair will also be attended by Col. Dayton W. Eddy, who will become Commanding Officer of the Depot, succeeding Colonel Kale, on Nov. 1, 1962. The attending Lions and county residents will take this opportunity to welcome him and his wife to the community and its activities.

Guests who will honor Colonel Kale by their presence at this affair will be, Congressman Francis E. Walter, Representative Van Yetter, Judge Fred W. Davis, District Attorney James Marsh, County Commissioners John R. Lesoin, Willard Quick and Stanley R. Raider, Sheriff Jake Altemose, L. A. Achtermann, County Commissioner Solicitor, Henry McCool, Probation Officer and James Cadue, Auditor.

Guests from the District Lions in addition to Governor Hall and Deputy Maxwell will be Mr. Fazio, Zone Chairman from Bangor, Ralph Lockard of Richmond and Mr. Effros of Washington, New Jersey International Counselors, plus many others who will be announced as their acceptances are received.

The program is being presented at the High School through the efforts of Neil Palumbo, Assistant School President and the courtesy of Francis Regan, President and the School Board of the Pocono Jointure and School Principal Lawrence Wile. The aforementioned people and Supervising Principal Willis Dunlap of the Jointure, will attend the affair.

Also attending in honor of Colonel Kale will be the officers and enlisted men assigned to the depot, and their families.

After the presentation ceremonies, the musical, "A World of Wonder", will be presented. All persons who have seen this presentation consisting of a prologue and three acts, say it is the finest musical, the scenery and costumes outstanding, ever to be seen in the Poconos.

Swastikas Painted On Wayne School

HONESDALE — Honesdale School yesterday offered a $100 reward for information leading to the conviction of the person or persons who last Friday night painted red-black "swastikas" on the exterior of the Honesdale Junior-Senior High School.

Wyman Fowler, board president, said the Nazi insignias were painted on the rear of the building, on brick walls, windows and doors as well as on the front of the structure. Red and black are, coincidentally, both school colors and the customary Nazi swastika colors.

The paint also was used to smear lettering which identifies the building.

The vandalism was discovered by William McGinnis, high school principal, Saturday morning. He notified Fowler, who summoned Honesdale police.

Meanwhile, an assembly of students this morning was informed that no evening activities will be held in the building until the vandals are apprehended.

School officials said that a warning had been sounded last week to students after ink had been used to draw small "swastikas" on the wall of a boys' lavatory. Smearing of the exterior of the building, school officials believe, stems from this warning.

Four men were at work today attempting to remove the paint. The extent of the damage has not been estimated.

Several Offers To Buy Shares

NEW YORK (AP)—Servel Inc., has offered to buy 700,000 shares of Sonotone Corp. common stock at $10 a share in a move that Sonotone's president termed a surprise.

Servel, which like Sonotone makes batteries, made the offer direct to stockholders. It would expire Oct. 10 unless extended. Some 1,220,000 shares of Sonotone were outstanding June 30, Sonotone closed at $9.50 on the American Stock Exchange Thursday, up $2.62.

Sonotone President Irvin I. Schachtel said the offer came as a shock to him although the two firms have talked about some arrangement in the past. He said the price is attractive but that he hasn't decided yet whether he will offer his personal holdings in Sonotone.

'Going To Have To Rely On His Word,' Jury Told

ADRIAN Maurice Bennett, 35, of 181 College Ave., Millroy, took the stand yesterday afternoon to defend himself against charges of rape and assault and battery in Monroe County Court.

Before Bennett took the stand, Lee B. Koehler, one of his two court-appointed attorneys, told the jury and Judge James Rutherford of Wayne County, Bennett had no alibi for the period in which the attack on Mrs. Laura LaBar, 76, of 330 Main St., Stroudsburg, took place. "You're going to have to rely on his word," Koehler said.

Under direct examination by James C. Scanlon, his other court-appointed attorney, Bennett told the court he came to the Pocono Mountains in early August, looking for work and secured a job at the Oak Grove House.

He said that on Aug. 11, the day of the attack on Mrs. LaBar, he hitchhiked to Stroudsburg and began an afternoon round of taverns.

Refused Service

Bennett testified that he was refused service in one tavern as too drunk and admitted he drank "quite a bit" during the afternoon. He said he returned after 10 p.m. to the Oak Grove House and came back to Stroudsburg in the evening hours and again began a round of drinking.

Bennett said he had never seen Mrs. LaBar or her husband until

Vet Fireman Caught In Own Trap

ACME HOSE Co. No. 1, East Stroudsburg, last night was in a state of shock — nursing a viper in its own bosom.

At approximately 7 p.m. yesterday, the department was called to Box 18 in front of the National Guard Armory on Washington St. There was no fire.

What happened was this: Chauncey Dailey, Sr., a 20-year member of the department, was assigned to apply a yellow phosphorus substance to fire boxes. The substance, which won't wash off, is intended to aid the department in detecting youngsters and others who turn in false alarms.

While applying the substance, known as "Firebug," to Box 18, the veteran Daily accidentally sounded the alarm.

A Vote For Justice

The Senate did the right thing—and is unquestionably reflected overwhelming public sentiment — when it voted down by a 66-to-20 margin the scheme for applying a 20 percent withholding tax to income from dividends and interest.

The arguments against this legislation are many and compelling. On the practical side, it would have involved a staggering amount of expensive paperwork. Numbers of authorities considered it to be so complex as to be basically unworkable. It would have been especially burdensome and damaging to people in the lower income brackets, many of them retired, who depend on dividends and interest for their livelihood.

The tax owed by this large group is much less than the 20 percent proposed — thus the government would have taken from them money to which it was not entitled. They would have received it back only after a prolonged period of time. And numbers of them, not understanding the routine one must follow to obtain tax refunds, probably would have lost out entirely.

According to the Treasury, failure to report dividend and interest income costs the nation $900 million a year. But that is no excuse for regarding everyone as a potential crook, and for making life tougher than ever for those who have put some money in a savings account or invested it in a stock or a bond.

There are other ways to obtain the taxes due—through extension of the educational campaign, through making better use of the information facilities the Internal Revenue Service already possesses, and through the new electronic processing and data-collecting system now being established.

The Senate, in a phrase, voted for justice.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Can New Textbooks Help?

"The education system is riddled with class distinctions and stratified with class assumptions," a titled English-woman said recently.

British? Why, of course. The matter of class in the British school system is a familiar story. That isn't true in America. Or is it?

The American public school system always has prided itself on its democratic traditions, and with good reason. The comprehensive high school, in which students of all backgrounds, abilities and interests are grouped together, is evidence enough of the way this tradition works. But if there is a conscious effort to avoid class distinctions and assumptions, it does not always succeed.

The most conspicuous examples of this are showing up in big-city, low-income neighborhoods. There the problem is not one of distinctions made between students, for with the flight of the middle class to the suburbs nearly all of them represent about the same kind of background. The problem is that teachers, for the most part, represent the middle class. And the books the children are called upon to read from the first grade on also reflect a background ranging from middle to upper class.

The gap between middle-class teachers and lower-class children cannot be resolved easily. The better teachers no doubt are aware of it, but the problem is a subtle one that will be around for a long time.

Books are something else, and it's encouraging to hear that Detroit has begun an experiment that could well revolutionize the teaching of reading in big cities all over the country. Books and associated materials being used in 12 Detroit elementary schools this year are believed to be the first published specifically for children in poor areas. The program is the joint effort of Detroit schoolmen, a Chicago book publisher and the Great Cities Program, a venture partly supported by the Ford Foundation.

The Dicks and the Janes in these books are not all white. They are both white and Negro. They do not live in the country or in the suburbs or in a big house. In short they do not reflect a middle-class environment. Instead, the children live in crowded big cities—not outright slums, but still row-house neighborhoods — and the things they do are things with which poor children, having a meager cultural background, can identify themselves.

This program will hardly be a panacea for big-city educational problems or even for the special problems of reading instruction. But it sounds like a step in the right direction. Children are bound to be more responsive to school materials that mirror the familiar and not a world they never knew.

'Well, Back To The Old 'Nyet' Grind'

The Pennsylvania Story

Campaign Promises

Harrisburg — Pennsylvanians would do well to look at gubernatorial candidate promises this year of "what I'll do if elected" with a decidedly jaundiced eye.

This is not meant in the usual sense of routinely taking with several grains of salt what a politician has to say as just so much campaign blather.

Rather, the point at which we are referring is that just about nine-tenths of what a candidate for the governorship says he will do if elected actually is just so much flap — not necessarily because he's issuing campaign blather, but rather because "he" actually doesn't have the constitutional power to do the things!

This somewhat critical point inevitably is overlooked in every gubernatorial campaign — not necessarily by design but rather because it's simply been the accepted thing to do.

To be specific: Mr. Scranton, at his "official" blast-off last week as the Republican gubernatorial candidate this year in his hometown of Scranton allowed that if elected Pennsylvania's next chief executive he would see to it that the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority (PIDA) would be expanded.

The fact: actually as Pennsylvania's Governor "he" can't expand PIDA — such authority rests exclusively with the State Legislature!

What about Mr. Dilworth, Democratic gubernatorial candidate?

We'll take the same subject—PIDA. Mr. Dilworth has said: "The powers of the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority will be broadened so that they will apply everywhere in the state."

(As a curious sidepoint, note the stand of both gubernatorial candidates on the subject of PIDA: Mr. Dilworth will "broaden" PIDA's scope; Mr. Scranton will "expand" it!)

Again though, the fact is: Mr. Dilworth will not "broaden" PIDA's powers; the State Legislature will—or will not—do it.

Or, the candidates may say they're going to expand civil service coverage, or provide more money for education, or expand the highway system, or close sales tax loopholes — etc., etc.

"They" aren't going to do any of these things — or a host of other things each vows he will do if elected.

Nobody is going to change any such statutory affairs of state other than the Legislature itself.

To some of course this may seem like somewhat of a pedantic point, but it might be

Off The Record

By Bob Clark

The Bergen Evening Record is a newspaper published daily in Hackensack, N.J. The publication covers a wide territory which has millions of people living closer than a MacGregor knitting.

A few days ago the newspaper devoted its lead editorial to Tocks Island, the proposed project which will cover the northern Delaware River above Shawnee to Port Jervis, N.Y.

The editors of the Bergen Record headed the editorial, "Too Much Time Is Prohibitive."

They brought out to their readers the vastness of Tocks. For example the writer penned, "Envision, if possible, a 33-mile-long man-made lake at the heart of a 70,000-acre recreation area within two hours driving time of either New York City or Philadelphia. An area serving 30 million persons with an expected gate of six million visitors a year and set down in the middle of some of the East's most impressive scenery."

"That's Tocks Island National Recreation Area, and no wonder individuals like Interior Secretary Udall and Senators Case (R-N.J.) and Williams (D-N.J.) are anxious that Congress move quickly to implement the vast project."

The New Jersey paper concluded:

"Last any one in Bergen County think a recreation area in Pennsylvania is nothing to get excited about, remember that the western terminus of the so-called Berge- Passaic Expressway will be in this Delaware Water Gap area."

The news median speculates that with such vast proposal moving ahead that land speculation in the Tocks, Water Gap and surrounding territories is taking shape.

To avoid this, the editors feel, speedy action must be taken to keep lower the costs of land acquisition.

The Bergen Record hopes that Pennsylvania colleagues of Senators Case and Williams, join with New York, Connecticut, and Delaware "whose residents stand to benefit as much as New Jersey's."

And another endorsement of Tocks Island is written into official newspaper records.

"Neither," said the great traveler. "What tickled me most was that I could sit in my hotel room and fish right out of the window."

The Allen-Scott Report

Khrush Publicizing Plans For Berlin As Pressure

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington, Sept. 25 — President Kennedy is keeping his own counsel about the threatened crisis in Berlin, but not Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

The Russian Communist leader is calling in Western diplomats and boldly revealing his plans to "neutralize" West Berlin after the November elections.

The alarming part of this brush diplomacy is that Khrushchev is spelling out in specific details his "order of battle" to accomplish his sinister objective.

For instance, Khrushchev frankly told Dr. Bruno Kreisky, Austria's Foreign Minister, that he plans to throw a blockade around West Berlin in November if President Kennedy doesn't agree to his terms to neutralize that city.

"Unless President Kennedy agrees to neutralize West Berlin and pull out all U. S., British, and French troops," reported Khrushchev, "all Western military traffic to and from that city will be stopped by East German and Soviet troops."

Khrushchev said he would permit supplies for the civilian population to be carried over the air and ground access routes from West Germany to West

Berlin as long as these convoys have their travel documents stamped by East German officials.

Before ordering this "warlike" military blockade, Khrushchev said he would continue negotiations with the U. S. through diplomatic channels until Nov. 6. If there is no agreement on his terms by that date, Khrushchev said he would then fly to the United Nations and "meet with President Kennedy."

"If Kennedy balks in accepting our neutralization plan," Khrushchev warned, "the USSR will go ahead and sign a 'peace treaty' with our (East) Germans. I will then order a blockade of all military traffic."

After imposing his blockade, Khrushchev said he would then call on the United Nations to force the U. S. and its allies to replace their troops with those of neutral nations. The U. S., Britain, and France now have 11,000 troops in West Berlin.

Talking Tough — In discussing Cuba with these diplomats, Khrushchev talked just as tough about what he would do in the Caribbean as about what he is planning to do in Berlin.

The Kremlin leader warned that he would order his ships to go through the blockade if the U. S. rings Cuba with a naval and air embargo, stating:

"I will send my submarines and MIGs to see that our ships get through."

This blunt talking by Khrushchev is being taken seriously by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. They want President Kennedy to stand firm in both Berlin and Cuba and to prepare for the use of military force, including nuclear weapons, to support his position.

The JCS has informed the President that the Berlin blockade story tallies with the one given by an East German military officer who defected recently to the West.

This defector, the highest ranking East German military officer to come over to the West, reported that Khrushchev's "order of battle" calls for the use of the next joint Soviet-East German military exercise as the vehicle to blockade West Berlin.

These military advisers of the President are convinced that Khrushchev isn't bluffing. They point out that the Kremlin leader would lose tremendous face with the Western and neutral diplomats that he has discussed his plans with if he didn't carry them out.

Another View — The State Department's top experts on "Kremlinology" are split on whether Khrushchev is bluffing or ready to take the big plunge.

One opinion is that if Khrushchev comes to New York, he would surely have in his pocket his proposed "peace treaty" with East Germany. Presumably, it would suggest making West Berlin a "neutral city" guarded by troops of neutral UN members. The final authority over the access routes to Berlin would be lodged with East Germany's Premier Walter Ulbricht. If Khrushchev found support for his proposal in the UN, he would then order his blockade to force the U. S. to go along.

Another opinion is that Khrushchev will come to New York to do a selling job with President Kennedy as well as with the heads of government of other UN nations. If there is no taker, this group of experts in "Kremlinology" believe that Khrushchev will harass Western air traffic to West Berlin with his counter electronic equipment, but will stop short of a full-scale military blockade.

President Kennedy has indicated that if Khrushchev comes to the United Nations sessions, he would be willing to confer with him.

But the President still has not told the nation whether he plans to stand firm, as he courageously did last year, or will he, as some State Department officials are urging him, agree to the "neutralization" of West Berlin.

The Alternatives

I am constantly receiving correspondence from readers who say it is absurd that the alternatives are war with Soviet Russia or a negotiated peace. Perhaps they are correct. Certainly, I should prefer to be wrong. But I have never yet come across another alternative except the obiter dicta that when the United States is strong, Soviet Russia backs down.

I do not know of one such instance. It has happened that Soviet Russia has taken one step backward to wait to take two steps forward. I do know that Soviet Russia has, on occasion, set up two fronts such as the one that caused the Berlin Airlift and the conquest of Nationalist China.

While we were engaged in one of these, with strength, the Russians took possession of the other.

Similarly, at the present time, Soviet Russia operates on three active fronts: 1. Berlin; 2. Cuba; 3. Economic penetration. Which shall be tackled or shall we tackle all three simultaneously? Can we do it without war?

I received a charming letter from Mrs. Beatrice Fahnestock of Washington in which she says:

"You have written twice that our only choice is War or a negotiated peace. This I do not believe. Whenever in the past we have been firm the U.S.S.R. has backed down. I do not believe they want war and I believe we could have torn down the Berlin wall and taken over Castro Cuba and they would have done nothing. If, at any time, like Hitler, they are ready and want war, no amount of appeasement or deals will stop them."

I should like to believe everything Mrs. Fahnestock believes, but while an assumption may be based in emotion, a plan of national defense must be based on knowledge. I am sure that neither I nor Mrs. Fahnestock nor the Secretary of State nor the President knows what Khrushchev's attitude is.

It is impossible to gauge his attitude because he is not accountable to an in-session Congress or to public opinion. He can take off a shoe and bank a desk and survive; he can insult the President of the United States and survive; he can punish those who promoted him and survive.

It is not the man as much as their system. It is not that he has nine lives; it is that the dictatorial system gives him a political advantage which he holds until he dies a natural or unnatural death. He has time not only to plan but to execute his plan or even to reverse himself. We would regard such a reversal as weakness; the Russians regard it as clever.

The gamble must be based on some knowledge. We know a good deal about his manufacturing ability and potential; I assume that we have an adequate knowledge of his arms and equipment. We can measure the general lines of his diplomacy and we are aware of his economic penetration.

But we do not and cannot know of the schemes that are nurtured in the mind of one person of unlimited power.

Mrs. Fahnestock says that we could have torn down the Berlin Wall of Shame. That is an opinion. There is no evidence that such an act would not have produced war. In fact, it could be that the Wall of Shame was erected to provoke war.

I have seen the Russians do stunts like that during revolutionary fighting. I refer Mrs. Fahnestock to the Father Gapon incident as an example. Tearing down the wall might be like the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

As for Castro, the time to have stopped Castro was in 1958 when five United States Ambassadors had provided our government with information concerning the bewhiskered beast. Today it must be done by war or by counter-revolution which is war.

It is not a question of appeasement any longer. That time has passed too. I believe that it will be war. But history is replete with incidents when war seemed inevitable and along peace prevailed after negotiation.

An example is the prospect of war between Alexander I of Russia and post-Napoleonic France. The Congress of Vienna settled that and there was no world war from 1815 to 1914.

The Russians, like ourselves, are being pushed forward into war, by the currents of history—these particular currents starting perhaps with the Chinese and Turkish Revolutions of 1912-1913.

School Teams See Win Streaks Ending

By DAVE LEHERR
HARRISBURG (AP)—It's turning out to be a disastrous year for schoolboy football teams with long winning streaks.

The season is only three weeks old, but already five of the top six all-winning schools have fallen victim to upsets.

Only Sayre has been able to survive, winning its first two games to extend its streak to 21 in a row—the longest in the state right now.

Beaver Falls was the latest to fall by the wayside, losing 13-7 to New Castle Friday night in quest of its 24th straight victory.

The triumph tabbed the Red Hurricanes a strong contender this year for the WPIAL-Class AA championship.

Similar fate staggered Chief Logan, Lock Haven, Albert Gallatin and Johnstown Catholic earlier in the month.

Sayre defeated Canton, 45-7, Friday to keep its streak going. The weekend also provided other surprises, including Greensburg's 20-0 victory over Wilkes-Barre, DuBois' 32-14 drubbing of Clearfield, Reading's 13-7 triumph over Steel-High and Windber's 20-6 trouncing of Indiana.

Monessen, the defending Class AA champ, won its 15th straight, downing Mon Valley 14-0; Uniontown walloped Redstone 33-14; Washington edged Chartiers Valley 18-13; Farrell shut out Butler 13-0; Charleroi beat Donora 20-14 and Mont Lebanon handed Trinity its third straight defeat 35-13.

Records Preserved
Action in the East Penn Conference highlighted football activity in the eastern part of the state, with Coal Twp., Hazleton, Tamaqua and Mahanoy Area all preserving their unblemished records.

The big surprise here was the 6-6 deadlock between Old Forge, last year's northern division champion, and Blakely.

Reading's upset of Steel-High threw the Central Penn conference wide open. Steel-High's win was the pre-season favorite, but now defending champion Harrisburg, Reading, and Lancaster are given an equal chance.

Harris won its third straight Friday night, downing Lebanon 14-0.

Braddock defeated Duquesne 22-0 Saturday for its 62nd triumph in 65 games. The Tigers' hold the record for the state's longest winning streak—46 between 1956 and 1960.

T. Davis Has Eyes Set On Bat Crown

NEW YORK (AP)—There are two good reasons why Tommy Davis will be trying extra hard for base hits during this final week of the 1962 baseball season.

He can help the Los Angeles Dodgers clinch the National League pennant and he can help Cincinnati's Frank Robinson and win the circuit's batting championship.

Davis and Robinson are tied for the batting lead at .343. The Dodgers outfielder gained three points in last week's games by collecting 11 hits in 26 tries. Robinson climbed two points with nine safeties in 22 attempts.

RBI Title
Davis virtually has sewed up the runs batted in title. He drove in eight runs last week, giving him 147 for the campaign. Robinson and San Francisco's Willie Mays are deadlocked for second place with 134.

Stan Musial of St. Louis remained third in the batting race at .327. He had seven hits in 21 at bats and neither gained nor lost ground. Hank Aaron of Milwaukee and Bill White of St. Louis traded positions. Aaron advanced to fourth on a three point increase to .325 while White remained at .324. The figures include Sunday's games.

Mays slammed two homers and lifted his leading total to 46. Aaron hit four. The Braves' star is second with 43.

Killerbrew Slugs
Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota was the American League's big gun last week. He walloped five homers and drove in 10 runs. The surge boosted his leading figures to 45 home runs and 120 RBIs.

Waring Tourney Starts Saturday
THE SECOND annual Tom Waring Memorial Golf Tournament will be held next Saturday and Sunday at Grandview Country Club, York, Pa.

Among the competitors will be Howard Everitt, Shawnee Country Club champion and former Philadelphia District and Pennsylvania State amateur champ.

First Fatality
Faust's death marked the first sports car racing fatality at Watkins Glen since 1950. It was also the first at the present course.

Faust had competed in the Giants' Despair Hill Climb at Wilkes-Barre for seven years and was holder of the second fastest time for the climb.

Earlier this year he was injured at the Pocono Hill Climb near Bushkill and was hospitalized for a week.

Last year, he captured the title of Pennsylvania Hill Climb Champion, winning five of the eight events he entered.

Kist Praises Team, Coaches

COACH Jack Kist yesterday praised what he termed a "tremendous team effort and the effort of scouting reports" for the East Stroudsburg High School team's 13-6 win over a powerful Pen Argyl combine Saturday night.

"All the boys did what was expected of them," said Kist, who would not pinpoint any one individual as outstanding in the game.

"It was strictly a team effort all the way," the Cavalier pilot commented. Kist had high praise also for his coaching assistants who turned in "a wonderful scouting report" from only one game (Pen Argyl's 53-6 walloping the previous week over Muhlenberg Township).

"Made Own Break"
Regarding the key play with little more than a minute remaining in the contest when Pen Argyl's fullback Jim Rodney fumbled on the Eastburg 4-yard line, Kist said:

"We made our own break up there."

Rodney was sent crashing through the middle of the Cavaliers line and was hit hard simultaneously by Mike Boushell and Allan Schell, sending the ball squishing out of his hands. Bob Corby pounced on the loose skin, giving Eastburg possession and the Cavaliers merely ran out the clock from there.

"It was a break for us," Kist said, "but it wasn't handed to us. We made it ourselves."

The hard-hitting Cavalier line which thwarted several potential drives by the Green Knights, under the direction of quarterback Denny Novatnack, drove 80 yards for the score, climaxed by a 15-yard pass from Novatnack to Semanoff into the end zone for the initial tally of the game. The extra point was missed and the score at the end of the first quarter was 6-0.

The next score came late in the third quarter when Semanoff raced 35 yards on a counter play to cap a 51-yard drive and score the clincher for Lehigh. On the conversion, Novatnack threw a pass to Semanoff in the end zone for a 13-0 lead.

The one bright spot on an otherwise dismal day for the Mountaineers was the fine performance of fullback Bill Bishington who gained 100 yards rushing for Stroud Union.

The victory was Lehigh's third of the year and their 10th straight over a two-year period. Score by Periods:

Lehigh 6 0 7 0-13

Liston Is 3-2 Favorite Over Champ Patterson

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—Sonny Liston, the hostile challenger, with the big left hand punch, remained a 3-2 favorite over Floyd Patterson Monday as interest mounted in Tuesday night's 15-round world heavyweight title fight at Comiskey Park.

Prospects of fair, cool weather encouraged the promoters to expect a crowd of 35,000 paying about $750,000 with a $100 top for the "live" show at the hall park of the Chicago White Sox.

However, the hall park was only the studio for a vast audience to see the bout on closed circuit television which had over one million seats available at prices ranging from $4 to $10.

Ring time is 9:30 p.m. EST and the fight will go on, even if there is a drizzle.

$5 Millions Total
If the promoters, forecasts hold up, the total gate will be close to $5 million, counting ticket sale, theater TV, radio receipts of about $400,000 and movie rights of $200,000. Chicago and a 100-mile area is blacked out on theater TV. The nation will hear the radio (ABC) account.

Patterson may receive the richest purse of any fighter in history with a chance of pocketing $1.7 million to Liston's $400,000. The old record is the $900,445 that Gene Tunney was paid for beating Jack Dempsey in the famous "long count" fight in Soldier Field, Chicago, Sept. 22, 1927.

Press Picks Floyd
Despite the odds favoring the hulking 6-1, 212-pound Arkansas-born challenger from Philadelphia, a poll of newsmen covering the bout showed a 60 per cent preference for Patterson on a 51-32 edge of 83 votes. The pick here is Patterson in 15 rounds.

Liston has to be the most dangerous man Patterson has fought on the strength of his ominous 33-1 record. Although Ingemar Johansson was unbeaten when he fought Floyd—and knocked him out—there were many detractors who pointed to soft spots on his European record. Few doubt that Liston is as vicious and menacing as his record indicates.

Huge And Hostile
An immense man with a steel rod left jab, Liston marches ever-onward, jabbing and hooking with his left and occasionally throwing a clobbering right. Sonny's reach of 84 inches, compared to Patterson's 71, has been surpassed by only one heavyweight champ, Primo Carnera with 83½. He has a 17½ neck, huge 14-inch fists and a built-in hostility to mankind.

Patterson has been called many names because of his manager-adviser's insistence in wrapping him in cotton batting against handpicked opponents, but he seldom has been called vicious. His most violent fight was the second bout with Johansson when he became the first man ever to win back the heavyweight title. He lives in Scarsdale, N.Y.

In training camp, Liston has

George Weiss in this last week of the current campaign with the Mets wallowing in the league's basement 60½ games behind the front-running Los Angeles Dodgers.

Stengel, more serious than at most of his press conferences, hinted that he signed for more than the $80,000 he reported received this year.

"I always get a little more money—you can say that again," said Casey with a grin. "I got enough."

Grim at times, Casey cut loose only three or four times with his patented Stengelese quips.

Once, when somebody wanted to know whether money is an object with him, he retorted:

"Certainly money is an object with me. I think I have value. Don't think I'm working for a cigar out there."

Another time, when a reporter asked if he learned anything managing a team like the Mets, Casey quipped:

"Yeah, I found out I better get out to the pitcher's mound in a hurry."

Lopez, a respected baseball rival of Stengel's through the years, reported received near $50,000 this season. He said in Chicago he accepted the two-year pact because he agreed with General Manager Ed Short and owner Arthur C. Allyn that the club's development program needed continuity at the top level.

"I feel the ball club is young and developing rapidly," said Lopez.

Rate Downes Favorite Over Sugar
LONDON (AP)—Terry Downes, 26-year-old British middleweight boxing champion, is rated the favorite to defeat an aging but still dangerous Sugar Ray Robinson at London's indoor Wembley Stadium Tuesday night.

The bookies, relying on Downes' youth and strength, made him an 11-10 choice Monday for the 10-round scrap.

Sugar Ray, once rated the world's greatest fighter, pound for pound, has the artistry, punching power and finger-craft to unsettle the swarming Downes early in the fight.

Nullification Is Sought Of Race Track License
HARRISBURG — Common wealth Court has been asked by two stockholders of Pocono Raceway to nullify the fourth — and last — harness racing license to be awarded in Pennsylvania.

Patrick A. Duffy and his son, W. Ken Duffy, filed suit Saturday against the license issued to Anthracite Raceway by the Harness Racing Commission.

Pocono was an unsuccessful competitor with Anthracite to receive the license to operate in Luzerne County.

The Duffys based their suit on the grounds that, among other things, there was a lack of due process in the award of the license.

They had no opportunity to be heard, they claimed, nor did they receive adequate advance notice of meetings. The award of the license was not based on findings of fact, conclusions of law "or even reasons for granting . . . or refusing a license," they argued in their suit.

Anthracite Raceway is holding some 10 per cent of its stock for W. Ken Duffy, but Duffy said he "doesn't want it and won't take it."

In their suit, the Duffys alleged: "One member of the commission was entertained at hotels, race tracks and other various places by the defendant Anthracite Raceway on many occasions which can be documented and which the appellants have actual proof and, therefore, the tribunal was not impartial and at least one member acted with regard to his own personal interest."

LONDON (AP)—Terry Downes, 26-year-old British middleweight boxing champion, is rated the favorite to defeat an aging but still dangerous Sugar Ray Robinson at London's indoor Wembley Stadium Tuesday night.

The bookies, relying on Downes' youth and strength, made him an 11-10 choice Monday for the 10-round scrap.

Sugar Ray, once rated the world's greatest fighter, pound for pound, has the artistry, punching power and finger-craft to unsettle the swarming Downes early in the fight.

Nullification Is Sought Of Race Track License
HARRISBURG — Commonwealth Court has been asked by two stockholders of Pocono Raceway to nullify the fourth — and last — harness racing license to be awarded in Pennsylvania.

Patrick A. Duffy and his son, W. Ken Duffy, filed suit Saturday against the license issued to Anthracite Raceway by the Harness Racing Commission.

Pocono was an unsuccessful competitor with Anthracite to receive the license to operate in Luzerne County.

The Duffys based their suit on the grounds that, among other things, there was a lack of due process in the award of the license.

They had no opportunity to be heard, they claimed, nor did they receive adequate advance notice of meetings. The award of the license was not based on findings of fact, conclusions of law "or even reasons for granting . . . or refusing a license," they argued in their suit.

Anthracite Raceway is holding

some 10 per cent of its stock for W. Ken Duffy, but Duffy said he "doesn't want it and won't take it."

In their suit, the Duffys alleged: "One member of the commission was entertained at hotels, race tracks and other various places by the defendant Anthracite Raceway on many occasions which can be documented and which the appellants have actual proof and, therefore, the tribunal was not impartial and at least one member acted with regard to his own personal interest."

Crowe's continue to have difficulty in finding the range in their first games on their home alleys. Okay Stuckey was the high scorer for the local club with 216-575. Russ Bergman had a 222 middle game.

million to Liston's $400,000. The old record is the $900,445 that Gene Tunney was paid for beating Jack Dempsey in the famous "long count" fight in Soldier Field, Chicago, Sept. 22, 1927.

Press Picks Floyd
Despite the odds favoring the hulking 6-1, 212-pound Arkansas-born challenger from Philadelphia, a poll of newsmen covering the bout showed a 60 per cent preference for Patterson on a 51-32 edge of 83 votes. The pick here is Patterson in 15 rounds.

Liston has to be the most dangerous man Patterson has fought on the strength of his ominous 33-1 record. Although Ingemar Johansson was unbeaten when he fought Floyd—and knocked him out—there were many detractors who pointed to soft spots on his European record. Few doubt that Liston is as vicious and menacing as his record indicates.

Huge And Hostile
An immense man with a steel rod left jab, Liston marches ever-onward, jabbing and hooking with his left and occasionally throwing a clobbering right. Sonny's reach of 84 inches, compared to Patterson's 71, has been surpassed by only one heavyweight champ, Primo Carnera with 83½. He has a 17½ neck, huge 14-inch fists and a built-in hostility to mankind.

Patterson has been called many names because of his manager-adviser's insistence in wrapping him in cotton batting against handpicked opponents, but he seldom has been called vicious. His most violent fight was the second bout with Johansson when he became the first man ever to win back the heavyweight title. He lives in Scarsdale, N.Y.

In training camp, Liston has

George Weiss in this last week of the current campaign with the Mets wallowing in the league's basement 60½ games behind the front-running Los Angeles Dodgers.

Stengel, more serious than at most of his press conferences, hinted that he signed for more than the $80,000 he reported received this year.

"I always get a little more money—you can say that again," said Casey with a grin. "I got enough."

Grim at times, Casey cut loose only three or four times with his patented Stengelese quips.

Once, when somebody wanted to know whether money is an object with him, he retorted:

"Certainly money is an object with me. I think I have value. Don't think I'm working for a cigar out there."

Another time, when a reporter asked if he learned anything managing a team like the Mets, Casey quipped:

"Yeah, I found out I better get out to the pitcher's mound in a hurry."

Lopez, a respected baseball rival of Stengel's through the years, reported received near $50,000 this season. He said in Chicago he accepted the two-year pact because he agreed with General Manager Ed Short and owner Arthur C. Allyn that the club's development program needed continuity at the top level.

"I feel the ball club is young and developing rapidly," said Lopez.

The American diplomat, who succeeds Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson, told reporters at the airport:

"I hope to listen very well, and in turn, I hope to communicate clearly the policies of the President and the secretary of state and the will of the American people for peace and justice."

Asked whether he planned to do his talking in Russian, Kohler replied: "It's rusty."

He declined to say whether he had a Kennedy message for Khrushchev.

Tannersville Post Office Commended For Bond Work

TANNERSVILLE — Postmaster Charles A. Brader, Tannersville, said yesterday he received a letter from William H. Neal, National Director of the U.S. Savings Bond Program, commending the local post office for its efforts in the promotion and sale of U.S. Savings Stamps.

"You and your associates have helped to make the Treasury's school Savings Program the success it is today," Mr. Neal wrote.

Gouldsboro Legion Nears Completion

GOULDSBORO — The construction of the Gouldsboro American Legion Home is in the final stages it was announced yesterday by James Ludwig, Chairman, Building Committee.

The building is of concrete block construction with a forty-foot front and a depth of sixty feet of the expansive type frame. It will have a colonial front of mottled brick to conform with its surroundings.

The Home, when finished, will contain a large meeting room, Legion Post and auxiliary offices, a small club bar, kitchen, and other facilities.

The landscaped grounds will have a circular gravel driveway, a flagpole, a parking lot, and a suitable memorial to departed comrades of the three wars. The present land of the Post measures a little over an acre of ground.

On Second St.

The building is located in Gouldsboro on Second Street, directly across from the Industrial Transformer Plant. The Legion Home will be used for meetings of the Post and the Ladies Auxiliary. It will have adequate space available for use by other organizations of the community on a scheduled and available for use basis. This will be in keeping with the American Legion program of providing community services.

The Gouldsboro Post is undergoing an extensive membership program at the present time to increase its membership from seventy-five to one hundred members. Any eligible veteran of the three wars is invited to contact the local post if he desires to join and participate in the many veteran benefits, nationally, statewide, and locally.

Gen. Clay Advocates Strong Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Lucius D. Clay said yesterday that the strongest action this country and its allies can take in West Berlin is to use troops so that the Communists "can take no aggressive action without using force."

Clay, recently special envoy to West Berlin for President Kennedy, rejected suggestions that this country's military forces should have knocked down the Communist-built wall when it was first erected in August 1961.

Clay also doubted that the Free World would gain anything by bringing the Berlin problems before the United Nations.

The four-star former Army commander suggested a dignified but reception for Soviet Premier Khrushchev by this nation if the Communist chief visits this country again.

He also said a formal treaty between Soviet Russia and Communist East Germany might be difficult to prevent or oppose if the East Germans merely acted as agents for the Soviets and "behave properly."

"It is regarded as a most important instrument in teaching citizenship and thrift."

"Now as another new school year opens, you will again have the opportunity of contributing to this important means of thrift education. I personally believe that a part of every American's savings belongs in U.S. Savings Bonds, and there is no better place to begin than with the youthful investment in Savings Stamps."

"On behalf of the Treasury Department, may I express sincere appreciation and ask for your continued active cooperation. Through the sale of U.S. Savings Stamps you offer a convenient service to schools, and to the public in general."

Own Endorsement

Postmaster Brader expressed his own endorsement of the Treasury Department's School Savings program for the purchase of Savings Stamps and Bonds, Savings Stamps and Bonds are on sale at the post office at all times as well as on School Stamp Day each week in the Pocono Elementary Center, Tannersville, Stamp Day will be held each Wednesday, starting October 3.

Public's Aid In Welfare Advocated

THE GENERAL public's increasing stake in health and welfare services was the subject of three presentations by directors at a meeting of the board of Lehigh Valley Social Service Exchange held recently in the Hotel Bethlehem.

"Voluntary Health and Welfare Agencies in the United States," a recent report financed by the Rockefeller Foundation, shows that the American public invests $1.5 billion in these agencies each year, said Mrs. John S. Cartwright.

The report recommends establishment of a National Commission on Voluntary Health and Welfare Agencies and it proposes that this Commission study: criteria for evaluation of voluntary agencies; public attitudes toward voluntary agencies; coordinated planning for health and welfare services; and voluntary agency support of research and professional education.

Intensified

Mrs. James Jamieson spoke of the interest in public welfare which has been intensified throughout the country because of relief situations such as that in Newburgh, New York. She said that the article "The High Cost of Poverty" offers some solutions to the public assistance problem which are applicable in our local area as well as elsewhere.

Edgar May, who wrote the article, was given leave from his reporting job on the Buffalo Evening News and worked for three months as a welfare department case-worker in Buffalo. He won the 1961 Pulitzer Prize for his series of articles on public welfare problems in New York State.

Mrs. Jamieson said that May is convinced that a way must be found to interest more people in becoming social workers and to provide the training required.

Mrs. Harold S. Pond, Jr., of Stroudsburg, pointed out that like the other two publications that the book "Better Communications for Better Health" also stresses the need for close coordination of health and welfare services. She said that this volume, which is an outgrowth of the 1961 National Health Forum, indicates the vital importance of good communication among the helping profession to insure the best kind of coordinated service to people.

Mrs. Samuel Wells, III, of Stroudsburg, also attended this meeting.

Jerry Weber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Weber, had the misfortune of falling from his bicycle and dislocated his shoulder.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Decker, Cherryhill, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Myron Snyder visited Clarence Arnold, Sunday.

Local conference will be held at the E. U. B. Church, Saylorsburg, Sunday afternoon at 2:30. H. W. Zehner, conference superintendent, will be there. Wednesday — teacher training at 7:30 p.m. Thursday — Junior Choir rehearsal, 6:30 p.m. and the senior choir at 7 p.m.
